NATIONAL WHIG NOMINATIONS.

FOR PRESIDENT,
GENERAL WINFIELD SCOTT, OF NEW JERSEY.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
WILLIAM A. GRAHAM,
OF NORTH CAROLINA.

"I HAVE SERVED THE UNION FOR FORTY-ODD YEARS, AND FEEL MYSELF A CITIZEN OF EVERY PART OF IT; AND WHATEVER OF LIFE AND STRENGTH I MAY HAVE SHALL BE DEVOTED TO ITS PRESERVATION."—Gen. Winfield Scott's Castle Garden Speech.

Washington Whig Club.

The regular meetings of this Club are held in the hall over Copp's Saloon at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evenings.

An accidental interruption to our power press has delayed our issue of this evening.

The Whig Rally Last Night.

One of the most cheerful, pleasant, spirited, orderly, and profitable political gatherings we ever witnessed assembled in this city last night. The Whigs of the Sixth Ward, (the Navy Yard region), having erected a beautiful platform and towering pole, called upon their brother Whigs to unite with them in the ceremonies of its dedication. At nightfall their platform presented a scene of dazzling beauty. High in the air, upon the immense flag-staff, streamed the banner of the Union; around the platform, ten or twelve feet from its floor, were arranged the beautiful transparencies executed by Porter, representing scenes in the life of the illustrious Scott. Wreaths, garlands, and bouquets, woven by the fair hands of the kind and noble Whig ladies of that vicinity, also graced the stand. In the rear was prepared a series of most admirable fire-works, the exhibition of which at intervals attracted universal admiration. The Marine Band, comfortably seated in a wagon near the platform, discoursed most eloquent music.

From the adjacent neighborhoods of Virginia and Maryland, and from Georgetown, there came pleasant parties of sympathizing friends. The Washington Whig Club also marched in full numbers to the scene, to the music of Capt. Marslett's fine band.

Not an incident of an unpleasant character occurred throughout the evening. No jar, no discord, no angry retort to the few "outsiders" who occasionally appeared somewhat menacing to the Whig Club in its march to and fro, but who yet thought it prudent to forbear!

On the ground in front of the platform the assemblage presented a fine appearance. As we looked upon the sea of faces turned toward the speakers, we felt proud of the Whigs of the Navy Yard, regarding them as a splendid specimen of an honest, an intelligent, an industrious people, whose very presence was an all-sufficient affirmation of the fact that the true and genuine republicans of the land are enlisted in the interest of the patriots SCOTT AND GRAHAM. In that multitude, leaning upon the arms of fathers, husbands, brothers, and lovers, were a very large number of ladies, to whom the thanks of all are due; for, to the honor of American citizens be it told, their presence is ever a guaranty of harmony and good order in every assembly.

The speeches of the evening were highly appropriate, soul-stirring, and cheering. Hon. Mr. BAYARD, of Ohio, led off in fine style. He was followed by the Hon. R. J. BOWIE, of Maryland, in a neat, eloquent, and hearty appeal to the PATRIOTISM of the citizens of this republic. Mr. TYLER, of Connecticut, followed in one of the happiest specimens of pleasantries, gentle satire, and enthusiastic Whigism, to which we have in a very long time listened.

Governor MOREHEAD, of North Carolina—the good old Rip Van Winkle, as they called him—enjoyed the attention of the audience in a stinging speech, in which every fact and argument was driven home with a pertinent and well-told anecdote. Hon. SAM. SHELTON, late of Virginia, followed in the same strain. The hour was late, he said, and he must set aside the elaborate argument he would have offered; but he condensed a pungent argument into a clever anecdote and off-hand witicism. Mr. GOODRICH, of Massachusetts, closed the addresses of the evening by an earnest and striking appeal, in which he pledged the nationality and the Scott-and-Grahamism of Massachusetts and New England!

Music by the two bands, cheers, shouts of applause, and roars of laughter and merriment, were the alternations of the time.

At the conclusion there was a magnificent pyrotechnic display. The names of SCOTT AND GRAHAM appeared in glowing light between two resplendent stars, and above them a beautiful transparency became suddenly illuminated. There were preceded by the exhibition of revolving wheels of fire, and other devices surpassingly ingenious and effective.

In a few minutes more the place was silent, the multitude had departed, and every one had retired full of ardor and enthusiasm in the good WHIG CAUSE!

That Letter!

We understand that the reason assigned by the friends of General Pierce for withholding from publication THAT LETTER is, that it contains some SUPERFLUOUS DAMNS! His friends show their good sense in keeping from the public eye an epistle that would do more honor to a member of the Empire Club than to a candidate for the Presidency, or even a private gentleman. If any Democrat denies the truth of this intimation, we dare the friends of General Pierce to publish the letter. The world is never the more likely to give credence to a man who swears to every assertion he makes. It is a suspicious mode of giving evidence; and when one begins to curse and to swear, and to deny with an oath, we are apt to recur to a memorable instance in sacred history wherein a good man in the hour of temptation adopted a similar course. Let us have that letter, denying the New Boston speech, Abolitionism, &c.

In Baltimore the Scott and Graham cause is doing well—in other parts of Maryland better. Our information is from good sources.

No man is too old to learn, until mental decay is apparent.

The Mysterious Convention!

The following appeared in the Philadelphia papers yesterday:

NATIONAL UNION CONVENTION.—This body met yesterday afternoon, when the proceedings of Saturday were made public. The following are the officers:

President, Hon. Charles E. Stewart, of Mississippi. Vice presidents, Noah Beesly, Massachusetts; G. Burgess, Connecticut; Edward Young, Rhode Island; Edward S. Sanford, New York; H. C. McIntyre, New Jersey; William Backus, Pennsylvania; William Ray, Delaware; Alfred Morgan, Maryland; S. J. Caldehead, Virginia; William Lane, North Carolina; Benjamin F. Clark, District of Columbia; Richard Thomas, Georgia; W. S. A. Antstay, Alabama.

The convention nominated Hon. DANIEL WEBSTER for President, and Hon. J. W. KENNEY, of Pennsylvania, for Vice President—the former unanimously. For the latter two ballots were had, as follows:

First Ballot—Howell Cobb, 17; H. S. Foote, 9; C. J. Jenkins, 23; J. W. Kennedy, 14; R. Toombs, 12; A. H. Stephens, 9. Total cast, 84—necessary a choice.

Second Ballot—C. J. Jenkins, 22; J. W. Kennedy, 58; Howell Cobb, 3; W. A. Graham, 1.

Yesterday afternoon, after providing for a formal record of nominations, the convention adjourned sine die.

The auspices under which it is proposed Mr. Webster shall run for the Presidency are very flattering. It is true, that he has unfortunately a goodly share of fame himself, but his associate on this ticket is unknown, and even the convention nominating them was marvellously obscure!

If obscurity be the only availability, as our Democratic friends seem to think, the prospects of the National Union party must be admirable. "Meeting," says the Philadelphia North American, "without any previous notice, composed of nobody knows whom, and sitting with closed doors, until after their business, such as it was, had been transacted, they came like shadows and have so departed, leaving no trace of their presence but the meagre commencement of their doings hereunto appended. Without any disparagement to the Hon. Mr. Kennedy—whoever he may be—it may, however, be pertinent to inquire why these superlative Unionists choose both their candidates from the North."

"Hearing something yesterday of such a convention being about to commence its arduous labors," says the Ledger of Tuesday, "we instituted a search for three mortal hours to find it; but all such efforts were in vain: politicians were for once modest, and would not show themselves to the public. At a late hour last evening we were informed the convention met in the back room of a hotel in Walnut street, near Fourth."

Betrayal of Business Confidence.

We find the following reply of a New York editor to an inquiry of one of his correspondents: "If a man goes to any of the banks in this city and inquires into another man's funds—asks if he has any there deposited, and how much—have the officers of the bank a right to furnish such information? I say they have no right to do any such thing. What say you, sir? Assuredly not. The officers of banks are supposed to possess a sufficient sense of honor to restrain them from divulging matters of this description. If such a system were generally pursued, public confidence would be entirely destroyed. The secrets of a bank, so far as private individuals having funds therein or not, should be maintained as sacred as those of the telegraph office; any betrayal thereof would lose the betrayer his situation; and, though bank officers are not pledged to secrecy, they are presumed to be men of honor, and incapable of betraying their trust."

The view taken is certainly a correct one. We heard of an instance in another city where a bank lost a large portion of its deposits from the indiscreet babbling of its officers and directors. We hold that a bank has no more right to disclose its transactions with individuals than a lawyer has to betray the confidence of his client. And any institution that does so is unworthy of public confidence.

The Irish and General Scott.

To the Editor of the Albany Evening Journal:

I cannot be silent while the rabid demagogues of the self-styled Democratic party are heaping the most wanton aspersions upon those Irish voters who are shaking off the rusty fetters of party and coming out in favor of Winfield Scott. One of the charges brought against us is, that we openly avow we support the Whig candidate because we earnestly believe him to be attached to our "ancient faith."

For a deliberate falsehood. No avowal of that kind was ever made. We are led by no such delusion; and it is "so" for any one to suppose there is an Irishman in this country who has resided here long enough to be legally entitled to a vote, and yet is so "green" as to be gulled by such a belief. In choosing between the candidates we are guided by purer and nobler motives than this class of scurvy politicians give us credit for. We join the banner of that man who gives the strongest guarantees of an upright and prosperous administration, by unfolding to our view a career which has reflected glory on his country, and redounds to his own undying fame.

The assertion by itself would be scarcely worth noticing. It can find no favor in any mind on which the lamp of intelligence sheds its lustre. But it is the characteristic threat they have pinned to it that deserves attention. They shake their heads and say, (as one of them said in presence of several persons a few days since,) "If the Catholic priesthood dare to exert their influence against the New Hampshire candidate, 'they may look out for powder and ball!'"

What an uncalculated for ebullition of desperate rancor is this, to say the least! These men know full well that the Catholic priesthood have studiously avoided, in all political contests, intermeddling with the views of their flocks. Yet this furious threat is made at them for some sinister purpose, which I cannot clearly comprehend. Perhaps they labor under the impression that they can intimidate the Irish to support their ticket.

They have for time out of mind succeeded in attracting the enthusiastic people to their side, (but that was in the days of Andrew Jackson, with whom all that was worthy the support of adopted citizens in that party sunk into the grave,) but I apprehend they will find it a difficult job when they attempt to drive them by "powder and ball."

They know right well that the Irish vote has long been the great element of their strength, and that without it the hopes of their candidate sink to a kindred "blue" with the laws of his native State. It is like pulling their eye-teeth to take it from them. "Help me, Cassius, or I sink!" was a moving entreaty; but "Do it, Cassius, or I'll shoot you!" does not strike the ear with the same music. Threats will fail to achieve their end. They will make more by keeping cool than by the system of ranting demagogism which they have thus far in the campaign so vigorously pursued.

Doubtless they will receive more Irish votes than they deserve, but I trust there will be enough that they will not receive to teach Franklin Pierce a wholesome Democratic lesson. That is, that the opinions of the masses in this country are strongly allied to the principles of civil and religious liberty, and that no State behind the age in her hostility to those principles can put forth a candidate who represents that hostile feeling, and ride him rough-shod into the Presidential chair.

A CATHOLIC.

ALBANY, July 22, 1882.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Thanksgiving, November 11.

Congress To-day.

SENATE.—A resolution to purchase five hundred copies of Mayo & Moulton's edition of the Bounty Land and Pension Laws, at $3.50 a copy, was taken up and passed.

The motion to reconsider the joint resolution explanatory of the census act, respecting the allowance of double salary to the Superintendent of the Census, was taken up and debated at length.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—The SPEAKER laid before the House the memorial of clerks and messengers in the Treasury Department, asking for an increase of twenty per cent. on their salaries, to meet the increased expense of living in Washington.

Mr. GENTRY said, as a housekeeper, he spoke from experience as to the expense of living, and regarded the application as one that ought to meet a favorable response.

The memorial was referred to the Committee of Ways and Means.

The general appropriation bill was then taken up, in Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union.

A Judicious Distinction. Toward the conclusion of the Whig meeting last night, Mr. TAYLOR, of Connecticut, reappeared at the stand, and said that a friend of General Pierce present complained of his asserting that General Pierce had fainted away upon a certain battle-field in Mexico. He said that he had so stated because he fully believed it; but, rather than do violence to the feelings of his friend, he would retract what he had asserted, and acknowledge that perhaps the General did not faint away, but simply fainted because he could not get away! The explanation seemed to be very satisfactory to all parties.

The Democratic papers are summing up the wages General Scott has received from the government in forty-two years. We hope they will also fix a value, if they can, upon the services he has rendered. We put it down at the respect, the admiration, the love, and the gratitude of the American public. We know many worthy Democrats who will not abate one jot or tittle of this estimate.

A rainy day—damp, moist, wet—very!

Editors' Correspondence.

[From our Baltimore Correspondent.]

BALTIMORE, August 3—10 p. m. The great capital prize of $67,000 which was drawn in a lottery here a few days ago by three of your Washingtonians has produced considerable excitement, and is, I am told, already a bone of contention. The ticket was brought to the city to-day, to be cashed, by a party outside of the original purchasers. It seems that, soon after the drawing was made known, a pretty shrewd personage here slipped quietly over to Washington and negotiated with one of the owners for a share in his interest to the extent of $7,000. He was the first to appraise the purchaser of his good luck, and the first, too, to take advantage of having a finger in the pie. This party now holds possession of the ticket, and, if I mistake not, will make another lucky shuffler when it is cashed to the drawers. The managers have not yet paid the money, and are not disposed to do so (as they have forty days grace) until all things are made perfectly clear and satisfactory.

It was purchased at the lottery establishment of Mr. LARWIN & Co., under Barnum's Hotel; and I understand that Mr. Larwin himself will visit Washington to-morrow for the purpose of arranging with the fortunate owners. It is but fair that they should give him another chance for having "backed fortune on their backs" so unexpectedly. The evil effects of the sale of this prize will, in all probability, be greater than all the good it does. Hundreds will be induced to suppose that fortune may smile upon them. Money will consequently be spent for paltry blanks by those who cannot afford such investments.

Prizes in lotteries are scarcer than "angel's visits," and come more seldom than the gorgeous blooming of the century plant—uncertain even as the chances of General Pierce's election to the Presidency. Let me advise your fortunate Washington friends to hold fast to what they have. The Whigs of our city are in admirable spirits. I have conversed with several who attended the great celebration at Niagara. They say it was decidedly the most enthusiastic assemblage ever before congregated in the United States. They have come home full of bright hopes.

The recent developments in regard to General Pierce's opposition to the fugitive slave law have startled many of his friends. Their confidence has been shaken very considerably,—not so much at his entertaining really the sentiments attributed to him, but at the apparent deception in his letter of acceptance, wherein adverse sentiments are avowed, merely to dupe the South. A man who, thus, on the very threshold of his career, attempts to disguise his real sentiments, cannot and will not be trusted. The evidence against him is too conclusive to be gainsaid. He has made a total mistake.

The weather for several days past has been remarkably cool and pleasant. The health of our city is unusually good. It would be well, however, for all to be cautious, as the cholera seems to be gradually approaching us from the North and West.

Business is steady for the season, but not active; and prices of leading commodities fluctuate but little.

CHESAPEAKE.

"Let us Reason Together." Mr. Henry C. Winn—Extract from his letter. "I had all the symptoms of consumption for five years—dressing cough, and great weakness. I applied to eminent physicians, (five or six) who were not flattered by any; was told I could not live; that abscesses had formed on my lungs; I was discharging a yellow phlegm and large quantity of blood. I heard of Hampton's Tincture, and gave it a trial. I now state to the world that it has cured me. I am now in the flesh." J. Grimes, esq., Loudoun county, Va.—Extract from his letter. "My wife has been for years afflicted with great weakness, pain in the breast, side and back, palpitation of the heart, feebleness of the nervous system, loss of appetite, complexion sallow, the sight of one eye almost gone, the other very weak. I am pleased to say that Hampton's Tincture has restored her to perfect health. Her eyes are as good now as they ever were."
